Wash-Up: Bills Receiving Royal Assent, 1987–2005

The purpose of this Note is to examine the passage of Bills that have received Royal Assent during the wash-up periods that preceded the last five general elections, by illustrating what stage each Bill had reached by the start of the wash-up and how it progressed through its remaining stages.

It also contains a table showing Public Bills currently before parliament and the stage in the legislative process that each has reached. The inclusion of this information is not intended to imply any judgement about when the date of the 2010 general election will be announced, merely to summarise the situation at the time of writing.

1. Introduction

When a general election is called, there are typically a few sitting days between the date on which the announcement is made and the date on which parliament is dissolved. During this time there is an opportunity to conclude outstanding parliamentary business. This period is informally referred to as the “wash-up”.

Guidance issued to departmental parliamentary clerks by the Cabinet Office explains that:

When the Prime Minister announces the date for the election he must also decide when Parliament will be dissolved. He can, if he so wishes, seek the dissolution immediately in which case any and all outstanding legislation is lost. More likely, there will be an interval between the announcement and the dissolution.

During this interval, usually referred to as the “wash-up” period, which might only be a few days (but possibly longer) the Government will decide what its priorities are and seek the co-operation [of] the Opposition in getting legislation through. In doing so there will invariably be sacrifices to be made. Some Bills might be lost completely, others might be progressed quickly but in a much-shortened form. A lot will depend on where the Bills are in the legislative process and whether or not they are controversial.¹

Further useful background on the wash-up, and the dissolution of parliament prior to general elections, can be found in the following House of Commons Library papers:

- Wash-up, SN/PC/05398 (25th March 2010)
This Note provides a brief outline of the procedures followed at the end of parliament to ensure the enactment of some of the legislation that has not completed its passage through parliament when a general election is called. The Note also gives details of the time available for wash-up following the announcement of general elections since 1983.
- General Election Timetables, SN/PC/4454 (17th March 2010)
This Note gives illustrative general election timetables for a number of dates in 2010. It should be noted that the House of Commons Library has no knowledge of the date of the next general election and that the last possible date for the election is Thursday 3 June 2010.
- Dissolution of Parliament, SN/PC/05085 (3rd February 2010)
This Note sets out current procedures for the dissolution of parliament, including some details on wash-up.
- Election Timetables, Research Paper 09/44 (13th May 2009)
This paper gives details of the time period between announcement and dissolution for each general election since 1918.

Concerns are sometimes expressed that normal parliamentary scrutiny is curtailed in the wash-up period owing to the time constraints of concluding business before dissolution; see Sections 2 and 3 of the House of Commons Standard Note on Wash-up for more detailed explanations and examples of this type of criticism.

The purpose of this Note is to examine the passage of Bills that have received Royal Assent during the wash-up periods that preceded the last five general elections, by illustrating what stage each Bill had reached by the start of the wash-up and how it progressed through its remaining stages.

The tables in Section 2 show, for the last five general elections, how many Bills received Royal Assent during the wash-up period, the type of Bill (Government (G) or Private Member's Bill (PMB)) and what stage the Bill had reached by the day on which the date of the general election was announced. The summary tables in Section 2.1 show this information at a glance for each year. The more detailed tables in Section 2.2 contain further information showing the title of each Bill, what stage the Bill had reached by the day on which the date of the general election was announced and when that stage was reached, and how the Bill progressed through its remaining stages to Royal Assent during the wash up.

The tables were all compiled using information from the relevant editions of the House of Commons Sessional Information Digest and Hansard.

Bills which received Royal Assent during a wash-up period but which had already completed all stages in both Houses prior to the announcement of the general election are excluded. Bills which were still before parliament at the start of the wash-up but which did not go on to receive Royal Assent are also excluded. This Note does not show to what extent Bills were modified during the wash-up in order to enable them to receive Royal Assent before dissolution.

Section 3 contains a table showing Public Bills currently before parliament; the type of Bill (G or PMB), the stage each Bill had reached by the morning of 30th March 2010; and the scheduled date of the next event in the legislative process for each Bill (where known). For ease of reference, Government Bills are listed first, with Private Members' Bills following. Private Members' Bills which can make no further progress (for example, where the Order for Second Reading has lapsed, Ten Minute Rule Bills which did not receive a date for a second reading, Ballot Bills that have been dropped) are excluded. The inclusion of this information is not intended to imply any judgement about when the date of the 2010 general election will be announced; the table merely summarises the situation at the time of writing.

3. Current Parliamentary Session

The table below shows Public Bills currently before parliament; the type of Bill (G or PMB); the stage each Bill had reached by the morning of 30th March 2010; and the scheduled date of the next event in the legislative process for each Bill (where known). For ease of reference, Government Bills are listed first, with Private Members' Bills following. Private Members' Bills which can make no further progress (for example, where the Order for Second Reading has lapsed, Ten Minute Rule Bills which did not receive a date for a second reading, Ballot Bills that have been dropped) are excluded. The inclusion of this information is not intended to imply any judgement about when the date of the 2010 general election will be announced; the table merely summarises the situation at the time of writing.
